After my wife Theresa passed on I moved from New Jersey to Massachusetts We moved to be closer to my daughter Melissa and my two grandchildren Jalen and Justin I wanted to do something in my wife's memory So I decided to write a song I hadn't written anything since high school And that was about thirty-five years ago Well one song turned into about ninety poems I hope I can do justice to my wonderful wife's memory As I tried to express in words how I feel about her Without all the strength and love she gave me over the years This book would not have been possible I want to thank my daughter Melissa and my son Keith For keeping me afloat when I was drowning in tears I also want to thank my two sisters Debbie and Mary For their love and support through out this tragic ordeal I will forever have tears for the women I love with all my heart I love you Theresa with all my heart!

The global coffee industry, which fuels the livelihoods of farmers, entrepreneurs, and consumers around the world, rests on fragile ecological foundations. In Coffee Is Not Forever, Stuart McCook explores the transnational story of this essential crop through a history of one of its most devastating diseases, the coffee leaf rust. He deftly synthesizes agricultural, social, and economic histories with plant genetics and plant pathology to investigate the increasing interdependence of the world's coffee-producing zones. In the process, he illuminates the progress and prognosis of the challenges—especially climate change—that pose an existential threat to a crop that global consumers often take for granted. And finally, in putting a tropical plant disease at the forefront, he has crafted the first truly global environmental history of coffee, pushing its study and the discipline in bold new directions.
